LYNCHED FROM A LIMB.

Mulatto Is Swung Near Leading Residence Thoroughfare.

MOBILE, ALA., IS PLACE.

Douglas Roberson, a Mulatto, Powerful and Bold, Who Killed One Officer and Wounded Another, Taken From Jail and Quickly Disposed Of.

Mobile, Jan. 23.—Douglas Roberson, a mulatto, powerful and bold, and for years regarded as a desperate negro, who on Thursday shot and killed Deputy Sheriff Phillip Fatch and wounded another officer, was taken from his cell in the county jail by some men and led to a tree at the southwest corner of St. Emanuel and Church streets, just one block from Government street, Mobile's most prominent residence thoroughfare, and lynched.

The affair took place just after midnight this morning. According to one authority, two men walked into the jail and covered Deputy Sheriff Hugh Gillis and Krouse with revolvers and commanded them to throw up their hands, accompanying their order with a demand that they open the door leading to the cells. The deputies, powerless, caught unawares, obeyed without resistance. Probably twenty other members, in the meantime, had gone up stairs, leaving the two men to guard the deputies. Later two of these came back down and demanded the keys to Roberson's cell, which were given them.

Gillis and Krouse were then left alone and ordered not to leave their seats or use the telephone under penalty of death. The mob, securing their man and gagged him, quietly left the jail and started with their captive to the scene of his crime. Before they had gone more than three blocks, the negro excited the gag from his mouth, and, like a flash, three revolver shots disturbed the quiet of the night and in a moment a large three-quarter inch rope was thrown across a limb and Douglas Roberson was jerked to death.

When lynched Roberson was clad only in his underclothing. Just previous to his arrest the negro was wounded three times, and when taken from jail his hands were bound with a piece of sheeting stained with his blood.

RUNS UP GALLOW'S STEPS

Joe Thompson Asks Sheriff Not to Botch Job.

Washington, Ark., Jan. 23.—Joe Thompson, a negro, convicted of killing another negro, Miller Brown, in October of last year, was executed here. Before Sheriff Velvin had proceeded far with the reading of the death warrant Thompson broke in with: "That is enough. Let's go on and get through with it."

The negro walked to the foot of the gallows without a sign of fear and then ran up the steps and placed himself upon the trap door without assistance from the officers of the law. He was given an opportunity to speak and declared he was guilty of the crime as charged. He said he was ready to die and warned all present to let his fate be a lesson to them. With a final request to the sheriff to "not make a botch job of it," the negro ceased. The black cap was adjusted, the noose placed around his neck and Thompson's soul ushered into eternity.

FORTY-SEVEN HEARSE.

Unidentified Bodies of Crib Disaster Near Chicago Laid to Rest.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Forty-seven hearses, escorted by 200 policemen, forming one funeral procession, conveyed to a cemetery the unidentified bodies of the men who were killed in the burning crib in Lake Michigan. Funeral services held in both Protestant and Catholic churches and many business places in the suburb were closed.

Fatally Scalded by Coffee.

Stephenville, Tex., Jan. 23.—George, the three year old son of R. G. Hammond, a prominent farmer of Erath county, pulled a pot of boiling coffee off a table. The fluid scalded his head, face, hands and shoulders. After suffering some hours the little boy died.

Two policemen and three boys are among the wounded.

Ex-Sheriff Gives Bond.

Nashville, Jan. 23.—Ex-Sheriff Thomas Cartwright of Davidson county was arrested on warrant sworn out by Justice Levine by Attorney General McCann in which it is charged that Cartwright swore falsely while qualifying as a juror in the Cooper-Sherpe trial in a statement that had he not formed or expressed an opinion in the case. Cartwright's bond was fixed at $1,500 and promptly executed.

Wife's Turn to Provide.

Greensburg, Pa., Jan. 23.—"Turn about is fair play; I provided for my wife heretofore, and it's her turn to take care of me."

This was the defense of H. E. Fennell of Grapeville, powerful of physique, when arraigned before Justice J. Q. Truxal for beating his wife. Fennell complained that his wife would not support him. He was arrested after he had beaten her. He was held for court.

Preparations are being made to open up these properties.

Ten Buildings Burn.

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 23.—Fire destroyed ten buildings, doing over $65,000 damage. JAMES S. SHERMAN.

you, all New Yorkers, attended the dinner, which was given to Mr. Sherman by New York's delegation in the present congress and the men who will represent the state in the Sixty-first congress.

AVAILANCHE OF SNOW.

Sweeps Over Camp, Causing Four Fatalities and Others Have Close Call.

Grand Junction, Colo., Jan. 23.—Four men were killed and more than a score had narrow escapes from death when an avalanche of snow swept over Camp Bird mine at Ouray. Four men were talking in the cook house when almost without warning thousands of tons of snow, rocks and dirt swept down the mountainside. The shaft was directly in the path of the avalanche and the men were hurled into the canyon and covered with snow. It will be midsummer before the bodies will be recovered. Caught in the steep mountain trails by the blizzard, which raged all day, was eight six-horse teams and the Camp Bird bullion stage, carrying $6,000 in gold and many passengers. It is feared they may have been in the path of the slide and great anxiety is felt for their safety.

The avalanche which swept the men to death was fifty feet high and it came sweeping down the mountain side with irresistible force. Men working in the mine fled for their lives, but the shaft building was not in the path of the slide. It was close enough, however, to tremble as the avalanche rushed by.

REPUBLIC RAMMED.

Run into During a Dense Fog by Another Vessel and Disabled.

Boston, Jan. 23.—The White Star line steamer Republic, which sailed from New York for Mediterranean ports, carrying 250 first class and 211 steerage passengers, was rammed by an unknown vessel and disabled twenty-six miles south of Nantucket while threading her way along Nantucket South Shoals in thick fog.

Immediately after the accident the wireless apparatus on the steamer flashed the news in all directions, and within a short time several vessels, including the French line steamer La Lorrain, westward bound, the White Star liner Baltic and the revenue cutters Acushnet and Gresham, were on their way to offer every assistance to disabled steamer. The captain of the Republic sent a wireless message saying the engine room full water, but the steamer was kept afloat and was in no danger.

The Italian steamer Florida, from Naples to New York, took off the passengers and crew.

ASSESSOR'S OATH.

"I, J. H. McCullough, Tax Assessor in and for Brazos county, Texas, do solemnly swear that I will personally view and inspect all the real estate and improvements thereon subject to taxation lying in said county that may be rendered to me for taxation by any corporation or individual, or by their agent or representative, as fully as may be practicable, and that I will as fully as is practicable view and inspect all other taxable property in said county rendered to me as aforesaid, that I will to the best of my ability make a true estimate of the cash value, the market value of such property, if such property has a market value, and if it has no market value, then the real value of all such property, both real and personal, on the 1st day of January next preceding, and that I will make up and attach to each assessment sheet made up and sworn to by the said property owners, their agents or representatives, a true assessment and valuation of said property, together with a memorandum of all facts which I may learn bearing upon the value of said taxable property, and that I will make all possible inquiry relative to the true value of such property, and that I will attach said memoranda and statement of facts that I may ascertain as aforesaid to the said assessment sheet of the respective property owners. That I have read and understand the several provisions of the Constitution and laws of this state relative to the valuation of taxable property, and that I will faithfully do and perform every duty required of me as Tax Assessor by the Constitution and laws of this state, so help me God."

"Article 5124. The board of equalization shall have power and it is made their official duty to supervise the assessment of their respective counties, and if satisfied that the valuation of any property is not in accordance with the laws of the State, to increase or diminish the same and to affix a proper valuation thereto, as provided for in Article 5123 of this act, and when any Assessor in this State shall have furnished said court with the rendition, as provided for in Article 5123 of this act, it shall be the duty of such court to call before it such persons as in its judgment may know the market value or true value of such property, as the case may be, by the proper process, who shall testify under oath the character, quality and quantity of such property, as well as the value thereof, said court after hearing the evidence shall fix the value of such property in accordance with the evidence so introduced and as provided for in Article 5123 of this act; and their action in such case or cases shall be final.

"Article 5124-c. When a commissioners court in this State convenes as a board of equalization, before considering the subject of equalization of property values for the purpose of taxation, each member of the court, including the county judge, shall take and subscribe the following oath: I, _____, a member of the board of equalization of _____ county, for the year A. D. _____, hereby solemnly swear that in the performance of my duties as a member of such board for said year, I will not vote to allow any taxable property to stand assessed on the tax rolls of said county for said year at any sum which I believe to be less than its true market value, or if it has no market value; then its real value; that I will faithfully endeavor and as a member of said board will move to have each item of taxable property which I believe to be assessed for said year at less than its true market value or real value raised on the tax rolls to what I believe to be its true cash value, if it has a market value, if not then its real value and that I will faithfully endeavor to have the assessed value of all property subject to taxation within said county stand upon the tax rolls of said county for said year at its true cash market value, or if it has no market value, then its real value, I further solemnly swear that I have read and understand the provisions contained in the Constitution and laws of this State relative to the valuation of taxable property, and that I will faithfully perform all duties required of me under the Constitution and laws of this State, so help me God." Said oath shall be filed and recorded in the commissioners court record as a part of the proceedings of that term of court.

"Art. 5124-d. If in passing upon the value of any property by a commissioners court, sitting as a board of equalization in this State, the court shall fix a value upon any property for the purpose of taxation and a minority of said court do not concur in the judgment of the court, the clerk shall record in the minutes of the court the names of the members, including the county judge, who do not concur in fixing such values (if the county judge shall cast the deciding vote in such matter), and if any Tax Assessor or members of any commissioners court in this State shall knowingly fail or refuse to fix the value of property rendered for taxes in compliance with this act, and all other laws of this State, such failure, neglect or refusal shall constitute malfeasance in office on the part of such Assessor or member or members of said court, and such failure, neglect or refusal shall be cause for his or their removal from office."

Emerson's Memory.

Emerson was a notable sufferer from the vagaries of memory. His biographer relates that he met him one day in Boston apparently at a loss for something and asked him where he was going. "To dine," said Emerson, "with a very old and dear friend. I know where she lives, but I hope she won't ask me her name." And then he proceeded to describe her as "the mother of the wife of the young man—the tall man—who speaks so well," and so on, until his interlocutor guessed to whom he was referring. Even the names of common objects often failed him completely. On one occasion when he wanted an umbrella he said: "I can't tell its name, but I can tell its history. Strangers take it away." This failing of Emerson led to a pathetic scene when he attended Longfellow's funeral and remarked as he gazed at the coffin, "He was a sweet and beautiful soul, but I have entirely forgotten his name."

Nero's Golden House.

The "golden house" of Nero seems from all accounts to have been the most stupendous dwelling place ever built for a mortal man. Even if we regard the ancient descriptions as somewhat exaggerated it remains one of the largest royal houses ever built, and the internal decorations seem to have been incomparably magnificent. It was surrounded by parks, woods and pools of great size, which appear to have been entirely within the walls. The colonnades of the house itself extended a mile in length and crossed one of the main thoroughfares of the city. The cities of the east were ransacked for masterpieces of Greek art for the interior. The walls shone with gold and pearls, and the roof rested on unmarble columns of enormous size and beauty.—New York American.

Not Bull Run.

The story was told of an American who happened to be crossing the ocean some years ago on the Fourth of July, which national holiday was celebrated with great enthusiasm by the Americans on board.

"I say," asked one of the Englishmen, "what is this the anniversary of anyhow? Isn't it to celebrate the battle of Bull Run or something of that kind?"

"No," promptly spoke up an American, "not Bull Run—John Bull Run."

Takes Him Down.

"Every man has his price," quoted the wise guy.

"Well, I've noticed that a woman can generally make him feel pretty cheap," added the simple mug.—Philadelphia Record.

A Wonderful Hand.

Master—I'm sorry to hear, Pat, that your wife is dead. Patrick—Faith an 'tis a sad day for us all, sir! The hand that rocked the cradle has kicked the bucket.

Fear and Danger.

Nervous Old Lady (to deck hand on steamboat)—Is there any fear of danger? Deck Hand (carelessly)—Plenty of fear, ma'am, but not a bit of danger.

The United States submarine tenders fly a flag with a black fish on a white background surrounded by a red border.

The Clothiers

For our own sakes and for the sake of posterity, let us be thankful that Lee, less intense and more practical, was spared long enough to teach us by precept and show as by example to bear the terrible ordeal of reconstruction. But for him and others like him there would have been insurrections against the intolerable tyranny of the carpetbaggers and the scalawags who, egged on and aided by the most powerful government on earth, did their utmost to force social equality and miscegenation on the people of the South. Throughout this long, lingering "crucifixion of the soul" Robert Edmond Lee showed us the hopelessness of resistance by force, which could only end in protracting the struggle; he encouraged us with the assurance that truer and loftier courage is shown in bearing with patience the inevitable than in hopeless resistance; he inspired us with the hope that fortitude would sometime have its reward, if not in our day in that of our children. In the dawn of another century another generation is enjoying the fruition of this hope.

Of the men who fought with Lee and Jackson under the star-gemmed Southern cross and who, to borrow a happy expression, "wore themselves out" whipping the invaders of our homes and destroyers of our institutions, many shared with Jackson a glorious death on the gory field, others survived with Lee to endure and fulfill the mission of suffering for the sake of our beloved country which was the portion allotted to our generation. But the pale ferryman has been busy all the while carrying our comrades to the other shore where "On Fame's eternal camping ground Their silent tents are spread And Glory guards with solemn round The bivouac of the dead."

In the dawn of the new century bringing other hopes and aspirations to a new generation, a feeble remnant yet lingers in the twilight of life, approaching with tottering steps the brink of the river on whose other shore our comrades are waiting for us. Soon, very soon, the latest straggler will hear the last reveille and respond to the last rollcall.

Wilson & Derden have received the latest weaves in Pongee, Mercerized colored dress Gingham for jumper and coat suits, plain, stripe and check effect.

R. E. LEE AND STONEWALL JACKSON.

Strong Resemblance and Striking Contrasts in the Characters and Lives of These Eminent Men.

(Read by Mr. J. M. Carnes at the centenary of Lee's nativity celebration by L. S. Ross Chapter, U. D. C. and published by request.)

The juxtaposition of the natal anniversaries of these two men is a coincidence added to the many ties that bind their names together in imperishable renown. Lee and Jackson—what strong resemblances, what striking contrasts their names suggest! Both typical Americans, both Southern, both Virginians, they differed in lineage, in the circumstances of their respective families and in the environments that surrounded each in early life. Lee was of the gentle Norman blood and could trace his lineage to ancestors who followed William the Conqueror and fought in the battle of Hastings. Jackson was of the sturdy Saxon stock and probably did not know the names of his great grandfather. Lee's ancestors were Cavaliers, Jackson's were Puritans. Lee was a Tuckahoe, Jackson a Cohee, which in the parlance of antebellum Virginia meant that the former was a native of the coast plain and the latter of the mountainous section which is now a separate state. Lee was a finished and polished product of that patrician society, which through the combined operation of many causes, chief among which were blood, climate, soil and the peculiar institution—slavery, reached its highest development in the Old South. Jackson's parents esteemed the family tree as of less value than the apple, the pear, and other homely denizens of the orchard, whose fruits helped to fill the pantry and added to the annual income. Lee was accustomed to the obsequious obedience of servants and his associates at school at college and in society were the most exclusively aristocratic F. F. V's. The mountaineers among whom Jackson was born and bred owned few slaves and had a supreme contempt for everything that savored of aristocracy; his playmates were the sturdy sons and buxom daughters of farmers, who cared little for the conventionalities of refined society. In physique, Lee was symmetrical, Jackson was raw-boned and angular. In manner, Lee was courtly, Jackson brusque. Lee's every act was distinguished by a natural grace and congenital dignity, inbred by generations of culture. Jackson's movements were abrupt and his slouchy figure on horseback was a source of much merriment among the soldiers. Lee paid strict attention to the niceties of dress, Jackson's clothes often looked like they might have been thrown on him with a pitchfork.

Both were deeply religious, as is evident from the fact that neither in his official reports ever failed to acknowledge his obligations to divine providence; and that they were equally sincere is attested by the universal reverence accorded to both by the soldiers, even the most reckless of whom never dared to call in question the piety of either. But the contrast in character again crops out in their church affiliations, Lee being by inheritance and of choice a high-church episcopalian, while Jackson was a Presbyterian of the straightest sect, so stern and uncompromising that among the soldiers he was familiarly spoken of as "the blue-light elder." While the devotions of Lee were usually in private, Jackson never failed to lift his voice in prayer in the presence of the army when on the eve of battle. In religion, as in all things, Lee was calm and philosophical; Jackson's faith was unquestioning, intense and savored largely of asceticism.

In their lifework we find again a parallelism and a divergence. Lee was a soldier and a teacher, Jackson a teacher and a soldier. Lee was a soldier by heredity and choice; Jackson was a soldier by the logic of circumstances. The preparations for Lee's education at West Point began with his birth; Jackson's entry into that institution was the result of an intense desire for an education and the opportunity offered him to take advantage of an unexpected vacancy. Learning the art of war in the same technical institution and under the tuition of the same teachers, when their respective collegiate courses were finished Lee chose the army and did not become an educator till he had accomplished all that it was possible for him to achieve in the profession of arms; Jackson entered with enthusiasm into the work of an educator and when the tocsin of war was sounded reluctantly gave up the career in which he was fast rising to eminence. It is another remarkable fact that when Lee, like Othello, found his occupation as a soldier gone, he took up the educational work of Jackson where the latter had left it off when he entered upon his brief but brilliant career in arms.

Another striking resemblance is found in the fact that in the capacity of private citizens Lee and Jackson were both opposed to the perpetuation of the institution of slavery and also, while admitting that the right to withdraw from the Union with or without cause was among the reserved rights of the states under the federal constitution, both were opposed to secession as a matter of policy. Neither regarded slavery as a moral sin but both believed it to be an economic evil that should be gradually and peacefully eliminated from our political system. Both were firm and strong in the conviction that sovereignty was inherent in the state governments and that the federal government possessed no rightful authority except such as was expressly delegated to it in the constitution strictly construed. When the long delayed but inevitable conflict between the centralized imperialism and the sovereignty of the states, each tendered his services to Old Virginia, to which his primary allegiance was due, and when the Old Dominion made common cause with her sister states of the South this act carried with it their fealty for the Confederate States.

From the beginning of the war till Jackson's death there was perfect collaboration between these two great commanders, each relying on the other with implicit confidence. You are familiar with the story of their exploits and achievements—"the world knows it by heart"—for it embellishes the brightest pages of the story of the greatest tragedy in human affairs. Both were wise in council, swift in execution and brave in battle. As a planner Lee had no peer; as an executor Jackson still stands without a rival. When Lee heard that from the fatal field of Chancellorsville Jackson had "passed over the river to rest under the shade of the trees" on the other shore, his anguished heart uttered a cry of despair; "It cannot be true! Jackson cannot be spared! He is the Confederates right arm!"

Jackson was fortunate in the time of his death. The Confederacy was doomed and the unequal struggle was drawing to a close. If we who were scarcely more than boys felt the fall of our government and the ruin of our people's institutions like the tearing asunder of our heartstrings, what would have been the agony of Jackson—he "in whose infinite spirit was room for the pulse of an infinite pain." Let us thank God that he was spared participation in the humiliation of the most high spirited, most chivalric people the world ever saw.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Perkins, Misses Bessie and Katie Heard, Ida Dowell, and Evelyn Erwin will arrive from McKinney on Monday, to be the guests of Mrs. O. H. Astin.

Beautiful engraved invitations announce a reception with which Mrs. O. H. Astin compliments Mr. and Mrs. Roger Q. Astin on Tuesday evening, January the twenty-sixth at eight o'clock.

Mr. J. Bert Graham has organized a Bryan Ladies Quartette, and they have already begun the practice of a program of high classed music, which will be used in public recital. The quartette includes, first soprano, Miss Gussie Buchanan; second soprano, Miss Mary McInnis; first alto, Miss Laura Dunlap; second alto, Miss Irma Harris.

Mrs. S. J. Bain entertained with a beautiful luncheon of twelve covers Thursday in honor of her sister, Mrs. W. H. Oliver of Bryan, and following the luncheon a game of bridge was the diversion. The guests were drawn from the intimate friends of the honoree. The decorations were exceptionally pretty and a plateau of narcissi centered the table. Silver candlesticks held white tapers, and the introduction of maline bows accentuated the beauty of the decorations.—Houston Post.

A most delightful and pleasant hunting part spent Friday afternoon in a most enjoyable manner trying their skill with the gun. The result of the outing was the bagging of a lot of quail. On the return trip home the crowd was entertained most charmingly at dinner by Prof. and Mrs. J. H. Allen. Those composing this party were Misses Alberta Adams, Malcolm McInnis, Francis Chance, Mary McInnis, Sarah Allen. Messrs. Massingill and Moyes.

Miss Clara Mawhinney was the charming hostess of a delightful party given Saturday afternoon in compliment to the "Stubborn Cinderellas." Twelve guests were present which number constitute the membership of this club. Three tables were used and several exciting games of forty-two were played. Dainty refreshments were served, and the memory of the occasion will no doubt linger for many days to come most pleasantly with the guests.

The embroidery Club sewed with Miss Emily Thomas in her dainty parlor on Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock. Since the holidays the members of this delightful club have done some beautiful needle work. This meeting of the club was most enjoyably spent with this charming hostess. Refreshments of a decidedly satisfactory nature were dispensed, consisting of broiled oysters, crackers, olives tomatoes and coffee.

A charming hospitality making the social calendar of the week was Mrs. J. W. Doremus' card party which was her compliment to the members of the Entre Nous Club on Thursday afternoon at three o'clock. Dainty score cards ornamented with little pappoose were passed to the four tables of guests for the club game, five hundred. The players anticipating a delightful game entered into the spirit with much hilarity and animation. Mrs. Doremus is noted for her delicious refreshments and the menu on this occasion fully sustained her culinary reputation. There will be no meeting of this club next week.

The Bachelor Girls Club spent a most delightful afternoon with Miss May Wilson on Wednesday at three o'clock and an interesting game of five hundred was enjoyed. The hostess on this occasion is not only one of the clubs most popular and lovable members, but she is also endowed with most excellent qualities as an entertainer. Her efforts to make all have a pleasant time were abundantly successful. The mother of the hostess served the guests with an appetizing lunch.

Miss Walker of Dallas who is visiting at the hospitable home of Prof. and Mrs. J. C. Nagle of the A. and M. college was the honoree of a very pretty card party Thursday afternoon when Misses Esther and Francis Davis entertained for her. Five hundred engrossed the attention of the guests and about five tables of players contested for the honors. The attendance was comprised of young ladies of Bryan and a few guests on the campus. Refreshments of chicken, crackers, olives, sandwiches, hot chocolate, whip cream and mint were served to the following: Misses Cora Garth, Alberta Adams, Malcolm McInnis, Gussie Buchanan, Vivian James, Lucille DeMaret, Mary McInnis, Ruby James, Hattie Lou Hudson, Allie Conway, Gertrude Eaves, Corine Carson, Milner, Marwinski, Hill, Styles, Reves, Whittington, Esther Davis, Francis Davis, Walker, Mesdames Moses, Welborn, Nagle.

City Schools.

The first grade under Miss Mary Burtis continues to grow in number. The West Side first grade is small. Miss Sunshine Cole was out of school Friday. Mrs. Wiprecht taught for her that day.

More professional books are in use by our teachers than ever before. They teach with them on their desks, and consult them from day to day.

Each teacher is held responsible for the order and the work in the room. In case of weakness anywhere, it is easy to locate the trouble and find its origin.

Each teacher receives cordial cooperation and support, but, after all, it is up to the teachers to "make good."

The teachers generally realize their responsibility, and are working earnestly to find and use the best methods of doing things. In order to have good schools, it is necessary that recognition and responsibility be definitely placed, and each teacher helped and encouraged to do superior work. That is what we are trying to do.

Shipping Cattle.

Messrs. Buchanan & Cloud are still shipping out cattle at a lively rate. They shipped on Thursday night a car of cattle to Fort Worth and a car to Galveston. Mr. Cloud of the firm, is now in Fort Worth. Since Jan. 1st this firm has shipped five cars of cattle and one car of hogs to outside points. With their feeding pens, they are making a market for cattle and hogs every day in the year which will be a great inducement to the farmers to engage more extensively in this profitable branch of the farm.

A POSITIVE CURE FOR INDIGESTION.

If you have indigestion, your food ferments in the stomach and bowels. It does more; it decays, and the nutritious matter which should go to make new blood decays with it and this leads to an impoverished condition of the blood, to nervousness, biliousness, constipation, sick headache, bad breath which disgusts your friends, and other disagreeable and unpleasant conditions.

And all this trouble is caused by the food that doesn't digest, but ferments and oft times rots in the stomach.

And fermentation is caused by the stomach not being strong enough and energetic enough to thoroughly mix the food with the digestive juices.

MI-ONA is responsible for tens of thousands of cures. In fact, it is such a positive cure for indigestion and all stomach troubles that it is guaranteed by E. J. Jenkins to cure or money back. The price of a large box of MI-ONA tablets is 50 cents, and they are sure to promptly cure the worst case of indigestion or gastritis. Try them.
